The Lieutenant Governor's Office can certify signatures of Notary Publics on documents that need to authentication before sending the documents to the Embassy of the country concerned. The Lieutenant Governor's office can also provide apostilles for documents to send to countries that accept them in place of authentication. An apostille is a form of authentication issued to documents for use in countries that participate in the Hague Convention of 1961. The US State Department provides a list of countries that accept apostilles. All documents in a foreign language must be accompanied with a notarized English translation.
