

2017 China Road Show

Changchun | Jinan | Zhengzhou | Kunming | Xiamen | Nanjing

The U.S. Commercial Service China and SelectUSA are pleased to announce the six-stop 2017 SelectUSA China Road Show, which will take U.S. economic development organizations across China to meet with Chinese companies seeking investment opportunities in the United States.

Location Overview

Changchun, Jilin Province

Changchun, the capital of Jilin province, has a vibrant automobile manufacturing industry. The local government has been making efforts to diversify into other sectors and promote tourism, food-processing and railway vehicles and equipment.

Jinan, Shandong Province

Technology intensive industries have transformed Jinan from a city supported by heavy industry and textiles to one with a more diversified industrial structure. IT, industrial equipment, home appliances, and bio-engineered products have become key industrial concentrations for the region.

Zhengzhou, Henan Province

Henan province's pillar industries include automotive, agriculture, equipment manufacturing and textiles. Investments from Henan to the United States in recent years indicate a strong interest in overseas business expansion.

Kunming, Yunnan Province

Kunming, the capital of Yunnan province, is one of southwest China's leading cities. Rich in natural resources, Kunming is a key player in China's agriculture and mineral production industry.

Xiamen, Fujian Province

Xiamen, as one of China's earliest special economic zones, is an industrial powerhouse on the southeast coast. Xiamen has a diverse and well-developed economy with key industries including electronics, IT, machinery and chemicals.

Nanjing, Jiangsu Province

Nanjing is a center for business, research and education. Outbound investment from Jiangsu province, where Nanjing is located, ranks among the top three provinces in China with trade flows over $500 billion.
